LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

Garima Lalwani - President
president@iwasingapore.org

With a background in Psychology, Garima has worked with developmentally disabled adults and at a shelter for battered women. She has been an active volunteer with various other organizations. She translates her passion in art and culture by volunteering as a Docent at Asian Civilizations Museum and Singapore Arts Museum.

Dear IWA Members,

I want to thank you for giving my team and me the chance to serve you. I take this opportunity to reflect on the year gone by. Keeping the guiding principle of IWA of Care, Connect and Celebrate paramount, we set out to work with a vision of IWA "WINS" where IWA would be a (W) welcoming place for all, find ways to engage, involve and (I) integrate with local and expat communities, (N) nurture existing relationships with our partners and (S) step up efforts towards member participation and volunteerism.

Our team set about collecting information about what our members wanted. It became clear that IWA members had varied interests with a desire to have more hands on engagement. There was a demand for weekend and evening activities. Member entrepreneurs wanted a central location for the IWA bazaars. With this feedback in mind, we set about planning the year. At the membership lunch 'Rendezvous' attendees heard directly from the Chairs and signed up for areas of interest. Empowered by information about IWA and having made personal connections, members felt (W)elcomed.

We initiated several new relationships this year. IWA members volunteered and engaged with organizations including the Yellow Ribbon Project, Food from the Heart, Willing Hearts, Henderson Community Club, Nee Soon CC, Babes Pregnancy Crisis Support and MINDS Tampines. We participated in conversations initiated by National Integration Council and MCCY. IWA invited organizations like American Women's Association, American Association of Singapore, Kamala Club and People's Association to partner with us in more meaningful ways. We started two new clubs, Acts of Kindness, to explore volunteering opportunities in Singapore and the Travel Club, to explore the world around us. We undertook new initiatives like festive gift voucher distribution to low-income families for SINDA, art workshop for Jamiyah residents and craft sessions for HOME beneficiaries. An IWA contingent will participate in the Chingay Parade Singapore 2018 for the first time. These activities helped with our (I)ntegration efforts with both local and other expat communities.

We continued to (N)urture our existing relationships. IWA members helped run the creative activities of SINDA's Project Give. Our members served the community for Holi and Eid celebrations with Siglap South CC. Members donated TransitLink cards, computers and threw a Diwali party for TWC2 beneficiaries. They worked with BSS, HOME and Swami HOME where needed. We helped spread the word about the prestigious Pravasi Bhartiya Divas organized by the High Commission of India. We participated in conversations initiated by National Integration Council and NIWC. With fundraising from two successful bazaars we managed to fulfill our donation commitments to our regular partners, (SWAMI Home, BSS, HOME and TWC2), raised the scholarship amount for SMU Vidya Scholarship and donated to two new partners, National Gallery Singapore and WINGS counselling fund to help individuals of Indian origin.

Sustained efforts by the team to engage members by providing opportunities to attend interesting events, volunteer, engage in stimulating discussion, learn, create, socialize, and develop friendships along the way, led to a marked (S)tepping up of member participation. We held about 115 events where more than 2000 registrants were members. Visual and Performance arts were given center stage. Our artists came forward to engage IWA members as well as the local community in PASSionArts plank art painting with Siglap South CC. IWA supported two plays, 'Project Roop Kaur' and 'Mindless Whispers' which helped us raise awareness for mental health issues. IWA hosted a well-attended talk on 'Understanding Depression' to further this awareness. Our author event saw book lovers and writing enthusiasts come out in full force to listen, share and explore the topic of Legacies with three eminent authors. Evening and weekend activities like NEWater plant visit, Botanical garden picnic, in conversation with actor Adil Hussain, the Music Gala, gave an opportunity to working women and families to be part of IWA activities. We moved the IWA festive bazaar to a more central location with better accessibility for all, leading to a substantial increase in participation.

Over the last two decades IWA has come a long way. Started as an Expatriate Indian Women's Club in 1997, it became Indian Women's Association in 1998. As we celebrate the completion of 20 years of IWA, I would like to thank the efforts of all who have come before us, members, past presidents and their teams. Each year, IWA has gone from strength to strength. Our membership numbers have seen a steady increase. The number of clubs and activities on offer have gone up. Our integration efforts, volunteering opportunities and donation support for partner organizations has increased, leading to a larger community footprint.

As IWA steps into its 21st year, we'll continue to seek new ways to engage our members with the WINS approach. I encourage you, along with your friends and family members, to take an active role by participating in the association's activities. I hope that you are as excited as I am for a fun-filled, rewarding year ahead.

Yours sincerely,
Garima Lalwani

Bina Batlivala,

IWA President 2002

Mother to 3 lovely children, 1 daughter in law, 1 son in law, 2 beautiful grandchildren, retired teacher, avid traveler, passionate reader, wannabe bridge player, mad mahjong player and open to new activities and opportunities.

I think back to my rich-with-experience IWA days with great fondness. Living outside India, I missed the "desi" camaraderie and in every place I lived, I promptly joined or formed an Indian women's group. My first large social outing in Singapore was an IWA meeting at the Indian Ambassador's residence; I met so many women that I could connect with and I was so excited to be part of the group.

As I reflect on what mattered to me most as President, I have no hesitation in responding, "being inclusive" and "giving back to the community." The incredible team that I was lucky to work with felt the same way: it was important to make each member feel valued and give them a sense of belonging. We organized coffee mornings where we made it a point to connect with each member in a personal way. We celebrated "Holi" and "Diwali" and everything in between as a community and tried our best to infuse each meeting with warmth. The idea was to organize events and meetings that were as diverse as our members and give like-minded women a chance to meet.

The avenue we selected for giving back to the community was Singapore Indian Development Association (SINDA), a self-help group established to uplift the socio-economic status of the Indian community. We organised a fashion show and pledged more than $35,000 to SINDA's students. The spirit of giving strengthened our bonds as a community and was the start of a close association with SINDA that continues to this day.

My husband and I relocated to Florida two years ago. It's been an exceptionally happy, busy time being close to our three children and two grandchildren. Now that the dust has settled, I am back to one of my favorite activities-women's groups- and am currently on the board of the newly formed Women's Club in Parkland. I am not sure where it will lead but as Rumi the Persian philosopher and poet said, "only from the heart can you touch the sky."

May the club reach greater heights, and may each member remember it with as much affection as I do.

Binifer Kaushal,

IWA President 2007

IWA - ever close to my heart, no matter where I live! The memories I collected from this group of moms, managers, entrepreneurs, chefs et al always bring a warm glow to the heart.

Each one came to IWA to learn in one way or another. Every single person made a positive contribution - The managing committee and every active member.

There was a lot going on when I stepped up to the task of president. A very informed book club, a super talented music club and a big winner was the lunch club which organized cooking demonstrations, at fabulous restaurants and homes, followed by a lip smacking meal.

The coffee mornings were the only events which were questioned and lacked quorum. Everyone felt they could grab a coffee anywhere, why go to an IWA coffee morning? This got us thinking and we started bringing in speakers. From a talk by a Vastu specialist, to information about feminine ailments and their homeopathic solutions, we covered a lot. A very interesting coffee morning was hosted at a gym where the trainers spoke about healthy living and ended the event with free training sessions by lucky draw. Soon, registrations for coffee mornings were back with a bang.

IWA has a fair number of entrepreneurs. With not many opportunities to showcase their wares, they went unnoticed. IWA Bazaar was born. The first one was held at the Pines Club and was very well subscribed to and attended. It was inaugurated by Mrs. Kiyoko Jaishankar, wife of the Indian High Commissioner to Singapore.

It's nice to know that all this is still a part of the IWA calendar. After Singapore, I moved to Taipei, then Mumbai and am in Dubai at present - catching up on my hobby, golf, and making quilts for charity. I am having a great time here and sometimes sit in my garden wondering, "where next?"

I wish IWA's committee and all members the very best and hope it grows positively every day.

Subina Aurora Khaneja,
IWA President 2011 & 2012

I have been an IWA member since its inception and one of my cherished memories is sitting in on a meeting when the IWA constitution was being finalized at the Tanglin Club. I have been on its committee in various roles, as Chair of the Book Club, Children's Activities, Events and Entertainment.

The first big event I planned for IWA was "Holi on the Beach".

When I became President, I was driven by a clear need to make IWA more institutionalized and professionally run. In envisioning a role for IWA, I thought about the role an association like this fulfills and is therefore useful. What is our purpose? Why do we exist? What needs do we meet?

Ours is a Community Organization, and as for any community welfare body, we must visualize how we can aspire to make a difference. Its clear mandate must be to have a vision for the world it operates in and has some influence over. It must be able to identify its community's needs, and fill gaps in the society... AND it must have a vision for the future.

So, I started by setting out a Vision, and the three-pronged Care, Connect, Celebrate ethos was created to give IWA direction and clear objectives. While the social objectives of having coffee mornings continued, the scope of IWA widened to include the needs of the changing Indian diaspora in Singapore.

We hoped to create a new direction for IWA and it makes me very happy to see that every program we started is continuing 6-7 years after they were launched in 2011-2012.

Piu Lahiri,
IWA President 2013 & 2014
Piu is based in Hanoi now and is on the governing council of the "Friends of Vietnam Heritage" and chairing the "Travel Around the World through food" circle for the Hanoi International Women's Club. She is also working on her book titled "Hennaed hands".

On 8th March 2013, I stood on the podium, before all the IWA members, taking the oath of the IWA President. In my years with IWA, I had seen the enormous talent of our members and decided to tap into that. My dream for IWA was a platform of friends where each member would feel they belonged, felt comfortable enough to contribute their skills, a place where each one's voice would be heard, and each member felt they were a cherished part of the IWA family. The core ideology remained the same, but many more clubs were started, chaired by enthusiastic members. So, whether you were passionate about food or keeping fit, about creative writing or starting a business - clubs were started to fill each need.

The IWA I inherited had an excellent online weekly newsletter and a website. So, the new clubs got advertised and the number of members attending the events increased. My focus was to get more members to attend our events - passion and not only perfection was the call of the hour. The IWA printed magazine was restarted with a new name, IWA Dhvani, and became a place where our members and their families started contributing their articles, paintings and photographs.

In the sphere of social service, we adopted a new project called "Beyond Social Services" where we worked with children from financially weaker sections and numerous teachers in our fold jumped in for the monthly visits.

Another memory is of one of our former IWA Presidents, Bina Batlivala, visiting Singapore and I used it then as an opportunity to get all the former IWA Presidents together. At my request Mrs. Raghavan, our patron and spouse of the then Indian High Commissioner to Singapore, agreed to host the session and we had a lovely morning in India House.

An area where we needed to increase our visibility and focus was in the field of integration. We worked together with many organizations and these events were written about in the local media. This opened many more doors as several Singaporean organizations heard about IWA and the work we did. Our image became a warmer, all encompassing one and more Singaporeans joined our family.

We were invited to take part in the Chingay Parade activity where we made colourful flowers for trees out of big and small plastic bottles.

We increased our activities with the migrant workers organizing meditation and yoga camps, having fun filled Diwali parties for them, baking cupcakes for them, gifting phone cards and EZ link cards, and providing translation services. We earmarked funds to be used for their medical expenses. We also reached out and helped migrant maids who were in limbo due to non-payment of their salaries.

In the 2 years, over 100 activities were perfectly organized by the IWA team, volunteering their time and effort. A team, that worked hard together but did not hesitate to speak their mind when they felt I was getting "too big for my boots". They remain my cherished friends, my wonderful IWA family.

Down Memory Lane...

A big thank you to Gauri Shrivastav and Subina Aurora Khaneja for sharing their memories with us. We hope these snippets will bring some of the earlier years alive for you.

The Music Group from 2003 to 2007 was a serious affair with trained singers. No bathroom singers allowed! The themes were classical like "Basant" or "Gazals" or off-beat like "Sing in a language not your own". Each singer had to be fully prepared with her song and some information about it. Some of the classically trained singers would also get their own instruments and make it a concert-like event. Members eagerly looked forward to Workshops – one of which was conducted by a member's mother-in-law on the Rajasthani folk music, Maand!

Activities for children were conducted every month to introduce them to the arts, language and tradition. They were diverse and ranged from cricket coaching, arts & craft, mother & baby joint activities and many more.

Major stage productions were put together very successfully as part of the children's activities. Around 60-80 children were auditioned for these productions and they learnt much more than stagecraft. For the first production, Once Upon a Time in Ayodhya, the late President Nathan was the Chief Guest. The first production was followed by two more – Krishna Leela and Kathasaagar.

The Book Club had some strict rules – no food except for a sweet and a savoury snack! That way there would be no distraction from the business of books. One of the members had to prepare an in-depth review of the book and everybody else was expected to have read the book and discuss it.

KathaSaagar was a dance drama featuring the children of IWA. Showcasing the nine emotions of Indian performance Arts, the Navarasas, through dance, drama, poetry and singing, the show meandered thematically between semi classical and neo classical genres with music based on folk and children's songs. With a cast of nearly 70 children, this Deepavali entertainer aimed to entertain and educate the children by creating a platform while showcasing their talent.

The IWA Acts of Kindness Club celebrated "World Kindness Day" by spending a fulfilling morning volunteering at Willing Hearts, which operates a soup kitchen that prepares, cooks and distributes over 6,000 daily meals to over 40 locations, 365 days a year. The beneficiaries include the elderly, the disabled, low income families, children from single parent families or otherwise poverty stricken families, and migrant workers in Singapore. The IWA team was joined by some members of the American Women's Association, American Association of Singapore and Kamala Club.
